

How To Start Homeschooling

an organization tool to help start
you on your homeschooling journey

<http://chaos-and-grace.com>

Congratulations on starting your homeschooling journey!! I'm so excited for you! In my blog I talked about following 6 steps to help keep you organized so you can start your homeschooling adventure off as smoothly as possible. If you haven't read all the steps yet, go ahead and do that first at <http://chaos-and-grace.com> so you know exactly how each step works. If you're all caught up...let's get right into it.

1. Visit HSLDA.org and click on 'Find My State' in the 'Homeschool Laws in your State' tab.

a) What are the laws that I need to follow in my homeschool?

b) What else should I know about homeschooling in my state/local school district?

3. What is my budget? Remember to be honest here. There is not right or wrong amount of money needed to successfully homeschool.

4. What are our learning styles & teaching styles? Visit Parenting.com, Educationplanner.org, and Homeschool.com for quizzes and tips. You may have more than one learning or teaching style come up. This is where you'll have to experiment to see what works best.

a) What is my child's learning style?

b) What is my teaching style?
